

Scouting celebrates ways of helping others

Elk Point Scouting Association members, their family and a number of guests enjoyed the annual Family Scouting Banquet as the highlight of Scout - Guide Week, February 21 - 27. This year's banquet followed the theme "How I Can Help Others," and designs pertaining to the theme were depicted on many of the cakes created by the members for the annual contest.

A surprise guest at the banquet was Mario Andrettio Spaghetti, (known in real life as Regional Commissioner Dennis Lyons) who bounced into the event wearing a badge and crest covered camp blanket and sporting a phony accent, intent on finding out more about the "little rodents" and "little doggies" of the Beaver colony and Wolf

Club pack. Lyons was highly entertaining for all all ages and said as he sped out of sight, "I think I like this Scouting thing."

Presentations were made to Beaver leaders Gloria Zarowny and Bruce Thornton, who then led their Beavers and the audience in two very lively action songs.

Cub leaders Glenn Flanders and Bernie Korpan were also recognized with presentations. Flanders told the audience about a new badge the group had earned this year with the help of the local RCMP detachment, during which they learned about the law, toured the detachment, held a mock trial and studied drug awareness as they worked toward their Law Awareness badges. Appreciation awards were presented to

Sgt. Pat Muzzeral and his staff for their work with the youngsters. Sgt. Muzzeral later presented the Cubs with their badges.

The Cubs finished their part of the program with another action song.

Town of Elk Point representative Bill Schuhmacher, a onetime Scouting leader, told the group that Scouting was well underway when he came to the community thirty years ago. He congratulated the leaders and sponsoring bodies for keeping it going, and told the group "Scouting is for everybody." He was presented with a plaque for the Town, in appreciation of their supplying sand for their sandbag sales project.

BONFIRE FOR BROWNIES - Elk Point's Brownies enjoyed a Scout - Guide Week sleepover at Fort George - Buckingham House Interpretive Centre this weekend. After cooking a supper of hot dogs and toasted marshmallows over this roaring bonfire, they planned an evening of campfire songs, with a hike and other activities coming up on Sunday.

Drobot not seeking nomination

John Drobot announced last week that he will not seek the Progressive Conservative nomination for the St. Paul Constituency for the next provincial election.

First elected in 1982, Drobot said, "I have tremendously enjoyed the privilege of representing the citizens of St. Paul Constituency in the Legislature for over 10 years. The friendliness of the St. Paul Constituency made being a MLA one of the most rewarding jobs of my life."

He added, "My warm memories of travelling country roads, chatting in cafes over coffee, and lively kitchen table discussions about grain quotas, livestock prices and politics will sustain me through the years."

Drobot said, "I wish to express my heartfelt thanks to my wife and family for their devoted support, to the presidents and executives of our local PC Association - one of the best in the province - and to my constituents, colleagues and staff members for their friendship and advice over the years. After 31 years in municipal and provincial politics, I feel it is time to bow out. As I look forward to beginning a new chapter of my life's book, I will recall with pride and humility, all those whose efforts contributed to the richness of the chapter pages of the last ten years."

Council supports volunteer week

Volunteer Week Coordinator Daphne Schnurer met with Town Council last week to ask for their support and involvement in honoring the community's numerous volunteers. "Our community needs these volunteers to function," she noted. So far, an evening with a live theatre presentation and a dynamic speaker is planned for April 18 to kick off Volunteer Week, while a workshop on volunteering is being set up for later in the week. In addition, the committee is hoping to encourage groups to honor their own volunteers. Ms Schnurer also wants the individual volunteers, who do helpful deeds on their own, rather than as part of an organization, to be recognized for their efforts. "A lot just think they're being good neighbors."

The Safety Committee has met with the Fire Chief for discussion of several matters. The re-election of Ken Palamarek as Fire Chief was ratified by Council.

Anniversary medals presented

Three Elk Point area residents are among the Canadians to be honored with the presentation of Commemorative Medals for the 125th Anniversary of Canadian Confederation. Sid Holthe, Paul Stepa and Vicki Brooker of Elk Point, as well as Bob Bachelet of Duvernay, were presented with the medals in Elk Point on Sunday, by MLA John Drobot.

The award is being made to persons "who have made a significant contribution to Canada, to their community, or to their fellow Canadians. The decoration is a reminder of the values of service, individual respect and community effort on which Canada was built and on which its quality of life will always depend," Drobot said, quoting from a letter conveying congratulations from Governor General Raymon Hnatyshyn.

Teacher studying waste

Lawrence Pidluzny, a science and computers teacher at F.G. Miller High School, is "cutting class" to go back to school for a nine day intensive study of waste-related issues and concerns.

Pidluzny is one of 24 Alberta teachers who were chosen to attend this unique Waste Education Institute, February 27 to March 7 in Edmonton, Swan Hills and Whitecourt. The institute will involve the teachers in a number of hands-on activities and special tours. The teachers will travel to an Edmonton landfill, sort garbage in a "waste audit" and tour an industrial facility to study consumer product waste.

The unique travel package also includes a tour of Save-On Foods and an Edmonton drycleaning facility to study consumer demand, retailing and waste. Field trips to the Alberta Special Waste Treatment Centre near Swan Hills and Alberta Newsprint's new recycled paper mill in Whitecourt will provide further learning opportunities. Other activities will include sorting experiments in two Edmonton homes and a visit to St. Brendan Elementary School, Canada's first ever "Green School."

"The program takes an intensive look at the relationship between the environment and the human endeavor," says Jim Martin, Executive Director of the Friends of Environmental Education Society of Alberta, who is coordinating the waste program.

"The Waste Education Institute is actually one in a series of teacher-training institutes called the Fellowships In Environmental Education. Its goal is to create a leadership network of educators who can tackle complex environmental issues in the classroom by sharing first hand knowledge and experience."

The Fellowships program offers several institutes every year, each on a different environmental topic. Environment - economy relationships are a main theme addressed in all of them. As well, each institute presents the issues with a "bias-balanced" approach - meaning that all stakeholders; including industry, government and environment / community groups, are encouraged to participate.

The Waste Education Institute will be the fifth institute FEESA has successfully run. More are planned, including a Water Education Institute at the end of March and one each on forestry and atmospheric change in the summer.

Board was also ratified by Council, giving the Board six town and four county members for their first full board in some years.

Fuel supply tenders were discussed, and the lowest of the three submitted, by Elk Point Tempo, was accepted.

Communication from the Minister of Transportation reiterates earlier reports that no signage to indicate directions to Fort George - Buckingham House Interpretive Centre can be placed on Highway 16 because it is too far away from the site.

Councillor Betty Callbeck will attend the Alberta Library Conference in Jasper as a representative of the Northern Lights Library System.

What's Happening At COMMUNITY SERVICES

Children gain in feelings of competence and self esteem when they do work that really helps in the family. They want to be useful members of their family. However, we frequently discourage them by the way we handle their first offers to help. "you're too young; you'll make a big mess; you'll break that; I can do it faster myself." Those excuses may in fact be very true but what can we do to save more work for ourselves and save their enthusiasm is by diverting them to chores that they are capable of doing.

Parents are the best judges of the jobs available to their children in their own homes, but sometimes our children are more capable than we give them credit for. Here are some hints to help your children become more responsible and feel good about themselves.

- Never do for a child that which he / she can do for themselves.

- We all need recognition and appreciation: we all like to feel competent and independent; our children have these needs too. Use expressions like "I appreciate " and omit put downs about his / her lack of skill.

- Use your imagination to make jobs easier and more appealing. Very small children can set the table if you make a place mat with knives, forks, spoons and plates on it. Small children need hangers, shelves and drawers that they can reach, all children need ample storage to be tidy. Help him / her to sort and discard every so often.

- Find something positive and HONEST to say about the child's efforts.

- Make doing their jobs a regular routine so they won't forget and so that mundane jobs become a habit.

- Keep your expectations reasonable. It takes time to learn a skill.

Jack and Jill Playschool incorporates these principles into our daily program to enhance your child's self-esteem and learning skills. For more information on Playschool call Gayle at 724-3800.

RURALIZE '93

Vegreville is hosting the first volunteer conference designed especially for rural people, on Thursday, May 6,

Self-esteem and learning skills

Rural organizations have unique needs. People, resources, and time commitments are different. Ruralize will address these issues and more. Sessions will be offered about recruiting, motivating and respecting volunteers. As well, you will learn how to best use your local media, how to access grant funding and how to conduct effective meetings.

Community Services will sponsor four people from Elk Point that are interested in attending this conference and bringing the information back to our community. People will be sponsored on a first-come, first-served basis. Carpooling is also being arranged. Please give us a call at 724-3800 to register or for more information. The $25 registration fee includes lunch and GST. Everyone is encouraged to sign up early as registration is limited.

WHAT IS YOUR ORGANIZATION DOING FOR VOLUNTEER WEEK?

Some exciting events are being planned. If you want to become involved and join in the fun, please call Daphne at 724-3800 or 724-4206.

WHAT IS A VOLUNTEER?

More and more communities are relying on their volunteers to exist. You do not need to belong to an organization to be classified as a volunteer. VOLUNTEERS ARE PEOPLE WHO PERFORM A SERVICE WITHOUT PAY. For example: helping your neighbor, visiting someone in the hospital, attending meetings, coaching, etc.

VOLUNTEERS GET MORE OUT OF LIFE! so join the increasing numbers. You're someone we appreciate.

FREE TAX ASSISTANCE

Volunteers are available to help. It is a FREE service. And, who knows, you may find the government owes you some money! Find out by having a volunteer fill out a tax return for you. This service is only available for straightforward tax returns for those who need help. All information is kept strictly confidential. For more information, or to get volunteer assistance, call Community Services at 724-3800.

Support group workshops

Self help support groups are rapidly becoming the way of the 1990's to address many common issues that effect members of the community. One of the many qualities of support groups is to realize that you are not alone and to share your experiences to help a fellow member. Support groups give you the opportunity to share at your level of comfort.

Community members have suggested the formation of various groups over the past three months. Some support groups could be on topics such as blended families, parenting teens, bereavement and grief, orphan grandparents, Alzheimers, family violence issues, adult survivors of sexual abuse and farm families' issues.

In attempting to coordinate this process to begin, the FCSS boards of the Towns of Elk Point and St. Paul and the County of St. Paul will host a workshop on Friday, March 12, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the County Office, lower level. Registrations are required by March 5. Please call 645-1950. Through Alberta Mental Health Initiatives Grant, costs are reduced to $10 per person, including lunch.

Workshop presenter will be Karen Carlyle of Positive Connections, Edmonton.

Bicentennial to receive award

Elk Point's Bicentennial Society has just received news that they are to receive the Edmonton and District Historical Society's Distinguished Merit in History Award for a group or society. Dr. John Foster of the University of Alberta will receive a similar award in the individual category.

This award is given to a group or society which has made a significant contribution to the awareness, teaching or recording of the history of Alberta. The Edmonton Historical Society is presenting the award in recognition of the remarkable achievement in commemorating the Bicentennial by drawing together diverse groups within the community and in creating several public exhibits of the history of the Elk Point area.

The award will be presented at the Edmonton Historical Society's John Rowand Night on April 17.

Joe Clark disenchanted

Today the airwaves - and, I have no doubt, the newspapers - are alive with the disenchantment of Joe Clark with political life. I could, as many have, wax eloquent over the loss to Canada of this energetic and dedicated man, whose honesty and devotion and just plain common sense, once lost, will be leaving a space difficult to fill.

I don't feel near as sorry for "the masses" as perhaps I could; rather, I believe they've gotten just what they deserve. (I will NOT say we, as I disassociate myself from those who couldn't say anything rotten enough about the man. I always believed he was a person above the mob.)

Canadians seem to have become a bunch of belly-achers in the extreme, for whom nothing is enough and no one does it right. Ready to tear down, even before the thing is built, the call seems to be only for more, more, more. Angels would be ridiculed, the mighty toppled, the pure defiled, the strong betrayed. And once the 'masses' haul everyone who tries to pull us up by our bootstraps down to their level, we'll probably end up just where our ancestors were when they fled to Canada to start anew, to escape the idiocy of Europe and elsewhere, where the whole of life seems to be to kill, destroy, aggravate and otherwise pull down their neighbors.

Small wonder Joe Clark retreats from this ridiculous game. A man with feelings, sensitive to the reactions of others, wise beyond his years - why should he stay to take the slings, the sneers, the lack of support, etc., etc., thrown at him almost all his years in public life? Surely there is better in this world for him.

As for Canadians, if they can't see or appreciate good work when they are offered it, let them starve. I surely hope Joe will find a life he enjoys and which will offer him some measure of satisfaction, and the respect he richly deserves. Which will be our loss. Perhaps he can go to the USA and help Clinton with his projected overhaul job; after all, Canada DID once have a reputation for sanity, fairness, equality and decency. Maybe Americans haven't caught on yet how far we have shrunk.

And that's my grump for the day.

My Mother used to sing a little song for us, long, long ago, about this beautiful island where the sun shone, the birds sang and life was wonderful. Let's see, how did it go?

"Somewhere the sun is shining, Somewhere the song birds dwell, Somewhere there's no repining, God lives and all is well!" And the chorus... "Somewhere, somewhere, Beautiful Isle of Somewhere! Land of the true, where we live anew, Beautiful Isle of Somewhere!"

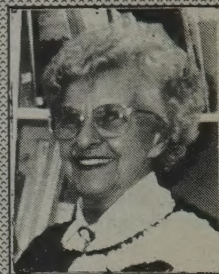

This ditty - or is it a hymn? - has a nice catchy little tune, and since it was sung to me so often when I was a child (and children's heads are hollow!) it has stuck and lingered, although I have no trouble forgetting almost everything else I hear. The other verses - I'm not sure in what order - go something like:

"Somewhere a load is lifted, Close by an open gate, Somewhere the clouds are rifted, Somewhere the angels wait..." and

"Somewhere the day is longer, Somewhere the task is done, Somewhere the heart is stronger, Somewhere the battle won..." with the chorus

Alberta Trails

By Irene Magnusson

following each verse. And somehow, we knew, after hearing this hopeful, beautiful song, sung by mother's soft voice, unaccompanied but quite true, that somewhere things were better, kinder, true. Birds did sing, the sun shone and there were blue skies overhead. God and angels were no more real to me than they are now; but the sun and sky and birds and trees were there for me to enjoy... as they are yet today, and as they are for you and you and you. I can always find time to appreciate the beauty of nature, even when it's too cold out to really enjoy firsthand, but I have windows. I hope you do, too.

Today is only four weeks from the Vernal Equinox, when our day and night are of equal length. We call this the first day of Spring, even if there are no flowers budding, no green of grass, no robins in the yard. But there is something about the longer days that makes our blood run faster, and lifts just a little the weary weight of winter.

OH, OH! My mistake. The Vernal Equinox is on March 20! Two days sooner than I thought. And that's not bad.

I will close with a little apology to those readers who look for my "Trails" each week: I am really NOT too lazy to write them anymore, but rather that they have been deemed a redundancy. Once again I am urged toward being "phased out;" to become disengaged (from employment), or, as they said in the olden days, fired. Not good at being a 'drop-out' I will probably pop up now and then, like the bad penny. See you then.

EDITOR'S NOTE:

The Review sincerely regrets the spending cuts, such as the discontinuation of Alberta Trails, which have been made necessary due to the severe hike in postage which went into effect this week for newspapers across Canada. We do hope to see her contributions from time to time, so keep watching to see where her trails will lead next time.

Our Past

Steve Andrishak

We all have experienced violent storms and severe weather conditions during our lives - some which we never forget. We realize we cannot do anything about the weather so we learn to accept whatever comes our way. When we compare our weather conditions with other countries throughout the world where earthquakes, flash floods and violent tornadoes occur, we can be thankful our storms are less violent than those we read about in our daily newspapers. Now and then we are hit with a violent storm just to remind us that it can happen here as well as in other areas.

One unusual rainstorm which I well remember occurred in the Elk Point district about twenty five years ago. At that time we were experiencing a very unusual mild January. One Saturday afternoon it started to rain heavily and by late Sunday afternoon we had a total rainfall of about five inches. Soon after, the temperature started to dip and during the next 24 hours our weather changed from about 40 degrees above Fahrenheit to about 40 degrees below Fahrenheit - a drop of about 80 degrees.

Another winter many of you will still remember was the winter of 1955 - 56. That year we had a normal snowfall up to the middle of March but soon after it started to snow heavily for many days. Snow plows were plowing snow every day and soon the ditches on both sides of the roads were piled high with snow. In many places the roads were so narrow it was impossible to pass oncoming vehicles. I don't ever recall another winter when we had so much snow.

For an extremely cold winter, the winter of 1949-50 comes to mind. It was one of the coldest on record. Shortly before Christmas the temperature dropped to about 45 degrees below Fahrenheit and there it remained between 40 and 60 below F. for over six weeks. It finally broke about the middle of February.

Over the many years we have experienced many electrical storms. One devastating electrical storm occurred on June 15, 1945, hitting the Muriel School four miles north east of Elk Point and killing two teenage boys playing near a swing. Another electrical storm killed nine of Nick Scraba's cattle a few years ago. The cattle apparently bedded down under a large tree during an electrical storm. Lightning struck this large tree, killing all nine cattle.

Over the years we have had a number of devastating hail storms which not only destroyed crops and gardens but damaged many buildings as well. One hail storm I remember well occurred to the west of Elk Point back in the 1930s. Prior to this storm two of our village residents left for St. Paul in an open air Model T Ford. Near St. Edouard, the hailstones started to come down quite heavily and to avoid the stones, William Soldan and Stanley Cromwell pulled over to the side of the road and quickly crawled under the car. A downfall of rain accompanied the hailstones and soon the area under the car resembled a fast flowing creek - they had the choice of staying under the car and taking a drenching or standing up to the hailstones and taking a real pounding.

During the past years we have all experienced many drought conditions which not only ruined the crops but gardens as well. During one of these periods of drought I overheard a conversation in one of our local garages. The conversation was between Georgie Johnson and a commercial traveller from Edmonton. The traveller was complaining about how dry it was in Edmonton. Georgie, who was well known in our district for his many tall tales, soon convinced the traveller that the situation was much more serious in our area. He told the traveller it was so dry in the Elk Point district that it was rumored that the nearby North Saskatchewan River would soon be running only two days a week.

The severest of all our violent storms occurred in the Spring Park district about ten years ago. A tornado touched down southwest of Spring Park Lake and then followed a north east course for many miles. It flattened thousands of large trees and uprooted many others. Considerable damage was done to George Smith's farm buildings. The Smiths watched this tornado as it approached and at the last minute they all hit the floor just in time to avoid the shattering glass from their windows. Luckily there were no serious injuries. Prior to this the Smiths watched as some of their buildings were lifted and hurled a considerable distance away. This storm would have been much more devastating had it occurred over a more populated area.

Violent storms aren't that common in our district, however, now and then one does come along, just to remind us that they can happen here as well.

WHAT'S NEWS AT THE LIBRARY?

New books

In these exceptional memoirs, The World Is My Home, James Mitchener, one of the world's best-selling authors, tells the story only he can tell, the story of his life.

Reconnect to the natural world around you in the book Nature Alberta by James Kavanagh. It has beautiful colored illustrations and descriptive text for mammals, birds, reptiles, amphibians, fish, trees and shrubs.

Here's a book for every person who is fascinated by cats, Simon and Schuster's Guide to Cats. This book has over 200 full color illustrations covering shorthair and longhair breeds.

For the juvenile reader we have Let's Find Out About Cats. In this book you will find interesting facts about cats throughout history, advice on how to care for your cat, activities and games for you and your cat and scientific information about your cat's body and behavior.

Why me? Sooner or later, it is a question we all ask ourselves as we struggle with the pain and despair of losing a loved one, as we come face-to-face with our own mortality, as we search for the meaning of our own lives and the reasons for our anguish. The book Why Me? Coping With Grief, Loss and Change, written by Rabbi Pesach Krauss, is drawn from the author's experiences with patients he has counselled as chaplain.

Two books in the prairie series by Hida Stahl are Blossoming Love and The Stranger's Wife.

All you ever wanted to know about the environment but didn't know who to ask, where to look or what to do, can be found in the book The Young Person's Guide To Saving The Planet by Debbie Silver.

Several new books for your young readers: Quiet Time by Seasmie Street; One Snowy Night by Nick Butterworth; a board book, Peek A Book can be found in the children's area, along with Yoo-Hoo, Little Rabbit! by J. P. Miller.

LEARN Monitor

The Elk Point Public Library and LEARN are proud to display the Literacy Coordinators of Alberta quilt in the Elk Point Public Library this week.

The Literacy Coordinators of Alberta (LCA) is an organization that provides support and professional development to coordinators of volunteer adult literacy programs in Alberta.

In 1988 the LCA decided to celebrate 1990, International Literacy Year, by creating a special literacy quilt. Fifty-six adult literacy programs in Alberta each provided a square for the quilt, and the finished product is a colorful work of art depicting well known landmarks, recurring themes and a grass roots spirit. The quilt squares were designed and completed by individuals who were involved with their local projects in a variety of capacities, as coordinators, tutors, advisory committee members, quilters and non-quilters. The quilt square for LEARN in the St. Paul / Elk Point area was made by Edith Mitchell, a tutor from Elk Point.

The quilt now tours the province. Through this tour, the LCA hopes not only to promote an awareness of literacy and its value to the nation, but to assist local projects in advertising their services to adults who need assistance with reading, writing and math skills. Transportation of the quilt is being provided compliments of Greyhound Courier Express. This is the first time the quilt has come to Elk Point. The quilt will be in St. Paul at the Municipal Library the following week, March 9 to 13.

The literacy project nearest Elk Point is LEARN, the Literacy Education and Reading Network in St. Paul. If you are interested in becoming a volunteer or need assistance with reading, writing or math skills, contact Tamara at 645-3276. LEARN is hosted by Lakeland College.

Thanks to Elk Point Public Library, Doreen Mayner and staff for their help and cooperation in displaying the quilt.
